SOCIALLY ORIENTED SCHOOL OFFERED

Congress to Be Asked to Promote Nation's Progress
as Well as Defense.

CHILD-LABOR MEASURE
ONE OF THOSE PLANNED

Convict Labor, Tuberculosis, Immigrant Protection and Vocational Educational Demand Attention.

The importance in connection with "preparedness" of a number of pieces of legislation which are aimed to better the national condition and facilitate its progress along both commercial and social lines, and which are to be submitted to Congress when it meets next month, along with the plans for increased armament, is emphasized by Graham Komeyn Taylor, in a statement issued by the Survey Social Service Press Service.

"Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute," is a slogan that once served to stir the nation to vigilance in the protection of its rights," says Mr. Taylor. "A question which will be asked of the nation when it convenes December 6 is the relation of possible millions for defense to the social welfare of the nation's people. Surely the countries of Europe have come to realize that in equipping themselves for war, the welfare of their people is being sacrificed to the welfare of the nation."

Failure to secure early consideration of bills was one of the chief reasons for the disappointing results in the session of the House of Representatives. The Palmer-Owen child labor bill, for instance, passed the House, but the objection of a single senator killed it in the upper chamber. The second campaign for the bill is now going on. The bill was introduced in the House of Representatives by Senator Owen and Representative Keating will introduce it.

Child Labor Bill.

"The bill prohibits interstate commerce of goods in the production of which children under fourteen have worked in mills, factories, canneries or workshops; children under sixteen have worked in mines or quarries; children between fourteen and sixteen have worked at night, or more than eight hours a day in factories."

Another measure designed to regulate the conditions under which goods are manufactured through federal authority over interstate commerce is the bill concerning the products of convict labor. A state may regulate its own convict labor, but it cannot bar convict-made goods coming in from another state. The Boomer-Hughes bill, as it was known at the last session, has passed the House four times. A year ago it was favorably reported by the Senate committee, but never came to a vote.

This bill and a new one designed to consolidate the prison activities of the federal government are particularly urged by the national committee on prisons and prisoners. At present these activities are scattered through various departments. The management of the three federal prisons and three jails and control over federal prisoners—some 4,000 of them in all—comes under the Department of Justice. All prison construction work is done by the Interior Department, which also maintains a hospital for convicts, while the statistics regarding prison industries is under the Department of Labor.

Commissioner of Prisons.

"The new bill will provide for a commissioner of prisons, in whose office would be concentrated all of the activities mentioned, with the duties of investigating, administration, housing and social hygiene of prisoners, educational methods for their rehabilitation, systems of pardon and parole."

Health measures before next Congress will include the bill to create a division of mental hygiene and rural sanitation in the public health service, which was considered last year; a bill to create a commission for the study of tuberculosis in the public health service, and a bill to provide federal subsidies for local tuberculosis hospitals.

The new duties proposed for the public health service by its own request are to deal with mental disorders, to encourage improved methods of rural and industrial sanitation, and to disseminate among farmers and other information for the prevention of communicable diseases.

Would Combat Tuberculosis.

"The plan for a federal commission on tuberculosis has been endorsed by four sectional conferences on tuberculosis and the American Public Health Association. They point out that last year, while $15,000,000 was spent in the United States for institutional care and treatment, less than $2,000,000 was spent in the entire preventive campaign. They cite the success of Dr. Gorgas in eradicating yellow fever in Cuba and urge that if tuberculosis is attacked similarly by the federal government the next decade will see a marked reduction in the mortality from tuberculosis as we have already seen in smallpox and yellow fever."

The plan is for a commission of eminent specialists vested with authority and financial support to make an intensive investigation into the etiology of tuberculosis.

An Interstate Problem.

"The care of tuberculous patients, who come from other regions of the country, has long concerned certain western states, and Congress will be asked to recognize that the care of such consumptives is an interstate problem. The California Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis is promoting a bill designed to provide federal subsidies to local hospitals which care for such patients. Industrial experts expect to include those before the last Congress and several new ones. Among the recommendations of the committee are that the federal government should be pushed to provide federal subsidies to local hospitals which care for such patients. Twenty-Five More Officers Have Passed Their Examinations.

Twenty-five naval militia officers have qualified in examinations required under the new naval militia act. The examinations have been taken by many other officers with satisfactory results, according to a statement issued by the Navy Department.

Four more examinations will be held before February 16, 1917, when the act becomes effective and when all militia officers must have qualified. The national naval militia will meet here December 6 to 10 for discussion of matters pertaining to the service.

There are now 1,153 saloons in Baltimore, or sixteen less than licenses were granted for by the liquor board from May 1 last. Of those granted five were not taken out and eleven were surrendered for cancellation.

Salesmen Are Fitted for Work of Soliciting Business in South America.

The Spanish class, which last winter was conducted under the auspices of the Builders and Manufacturers' Exchange, resumed Thursday night, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Welsh. S. J. Macfarren again has been engaged to serve as instructor.

Vocational Education.

"Effort will again be made to secure the adoption of the Smith-Hughes vocational education bill. Its two large aims are to extend federal help to the states in providing vocational education and training teachers in this field, by grants of money and by establishing a federal board for vocational education to work with the states in securing appropriations ranging from $500,000 the first year to $3,000,000 the eighth year thereafter. Favorable action is to be sought for the Abernethy bill requiring the commissioner of education to promote plans to eliminate illiteracy."

The campaign for the safety of passengers on steamships in which the consumers' league has been interested, will be further pushed, and at its meeting in November the league voted to take the initiative in obtaining an investigation of the Eastland disaster.

Peter Thinks Things Over.

Peter Rabbit sat looking over his shoulder mournfully. He was looking at that funny little old man of his, which since Old Man Coyote had pulled a trick of hair out of the middle of it, looked funnier than ever. You know that tail always has worried Peter. If Peter ever is envious it is when he sees some one with a beautiful tail. He has had enough of his own. He had enough of that old man Coyote had pulled a trick of hair out of the middle of it, looked funnier than ever. You know that tail always has worried Peter.
